

It's less painful than you'd think.

"Believe me, I'm no computer genius. But I know the sax.

"When our band started touring, we wanted a website to tell the world about our gigs. I didn't know where to begin and everyone in the band had different ideas about what the site should do.

"It looked like launching a website was going to be a royal pain.

"Macromedia's HomeSite was the key. The entire band got involved and HomeSite helped us figure everything out.

"I wish writing songs was as easy as working on our website!"

